Conclusion

The Student Satisfaction Survey has been concluded with the idea that it reflects the students' mindset in proper terms as to how far they were satisfied with the facilities provided by the college and their learning experience in general.

Of the various aspects, coming to light from this survey, it can be concluded that there is a demand among students for new courses and subjects to be introduced in the college. The areas of infrastructure including ICT tools for learning, and library facilities are also highlighted from the survey to be areas requiring attention by the authorities.

Additionally, another matter requiring attention is the area of transportation to and from the college in which the college would require assistance from the government or concerned agencies in order to facilitate students' communication so that they are able to attend daily classes and related activities in time.
